High Performance Thin Layer Chromatography (HPTLC)

In compliance with cGMPs, Starwest currently uses HPTLC testing, which is an essential tool to efficiently and accurately determine product identity and purity. By quantifying or comparing the distribution patterns of marker compounds in different solvent systems (unique to each plant and class of actives) against our proprietary Botanical Reference library, our laboratory personnel can confidently and accurately verify product identity and identify known adulterates.

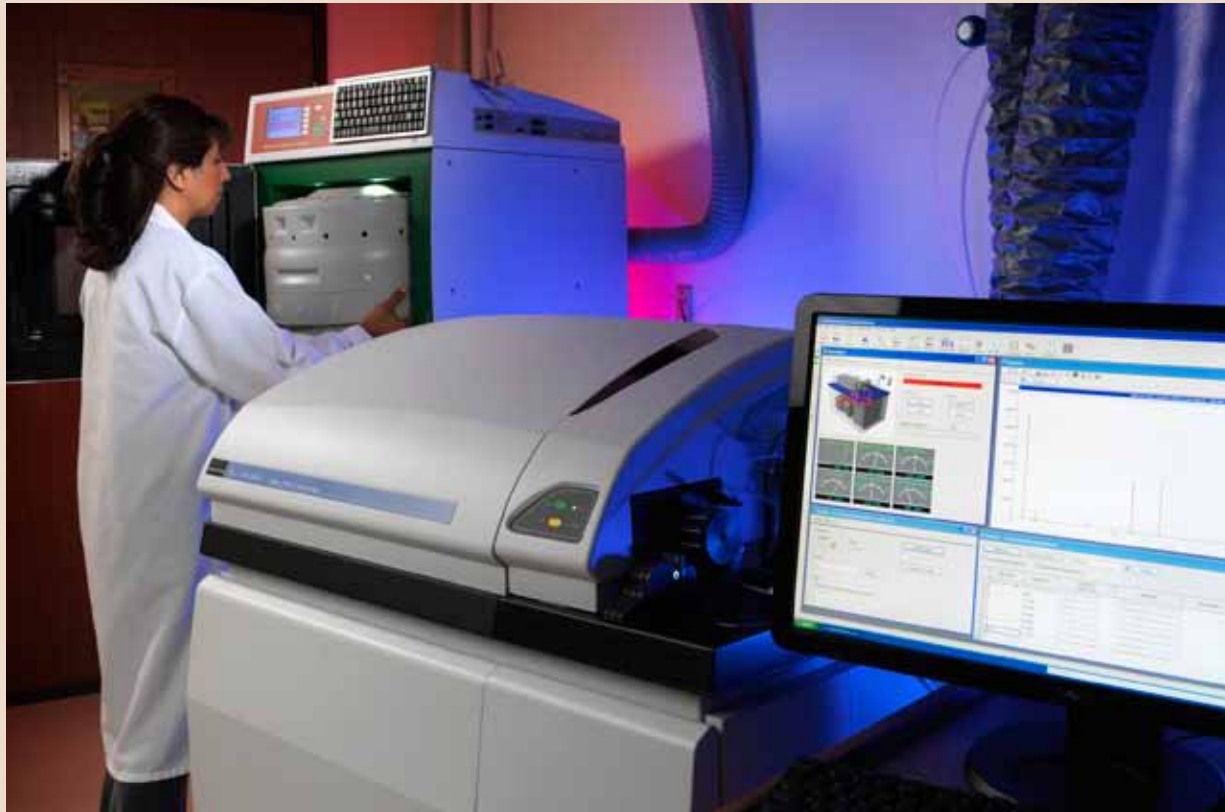

QUALITY ASSURANCE

Inductively Coupled Plasma- Mass Spectrometry (ICP-MS)

Inductively Coupled Plasma- Mass Spectrometry is used to measure trace metals in a variety of solutions. ICP-MS offers a very sensitive, specific and reproducible way to determine heavy metal concentration. It can identify and quantify each metallic impurity with high sensitivity; and, can be used to test for the entire Periodic Table in one analysis. ICP detection limits for most elements are in the part-per-billion (ppb) range.
